REAL ESTATE NEWS

A recent report stated that Adelaide house prices are growing at only 4-5% annually. Other research sources have substantiated this figure. While this re-enforces the claim that SA is a slow and steady property market, such generalized figures disguise the stellar performance of some SA suburbs.

Looking at the statistics from a different angle another report claims that Adelaide now ranks ahead of Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane in terms of the number of growth suburbs.

According to the report, few of the nation's capitals can match Adelaide in the number of growth suburbs. Locations recording double-digit growth in median house prices (past 12 months) include Belair, Crafers, Craigmores, Elizabeth Park, Fullarton, North Adelaide, Prospect, Semaphore, Somerton Park, Walkerville and Woodville South.

Meanwhile, the Marion LGA has emerged in 2017 as the No.1 municipality and now has nine suburbs with upwardly-mobile markets. Watch Oaklands Park, Sheidow Park, Clovelly Park, Dover Gardens, Edwardstown, Glengowrie and Mitchell Park. Interested in reading the full article? Email info@glenndias.com or call 8266 0888.
